

ADVERTISE YOUR CME OPPORTUNITY

American Family Physician®

Advertise your CME course to a qualified readership of primary care physicians in the publication they turn to for continuing medical education, American Family Physician.

Reach primary care physicians with your CME opportunity in the best-read journal in primary care.

Did you know...

- American Family Physician (AFP) offers an average of 4 CME credits per issue.
- AFP offers more CME than all other primary care journals combined, making this journal a valuable resource for information and continuing education.
- In 2012, AFP offered 90.5 CME credits.
- On average, family physicians spend 2 hours reading each issue of AFP.

Advertisers also have the opportunity to supplement each ad with a digital listing on AAFP's official website. Contact us today to start promoting your CME opportunity to a targeted audience of primary care physicians.

To advertise your CME opportunity, you will need to submit your course/program information for American Academy of Family Physicians' CME credit determination approval by the Commission on Continuing Professional Development.

Note: The approval process takes approximately six weeks. Be sure you begin the approval process in time to effectively advertise your CME opportunity!
